A smile is a light in the window of our face that tells people we are home.

Is your smile in the best of hands? Finding an exceptional dentist with impeccable credentials, experience and skill, and a warm, compassionate chair-side manner can make all the difference. Just ask patients who have chosen Scott Young, D.D.S. They will tell you not only how much they love their beautiful, healthy smiles, but that they enjoy their visits to Dr. Young's office. Even people who have previously experienced anxiety before visiting the dentist look forward to their appointments with Dr. Young and his team.

Living magazine recently had the opportunity to ask Dr. Young about his unique approach to cosmetic and general dentistry, his passion for providing world-class service, what to look for when choosing a dentist, and more.

LM: Your patients are all smiles when they arrive for their appointments and when they leave. What's your secret?

Dr. Young: Several factors play a role in providing truly exceptional dental care. High quality dentistry, using the best-of-the-best materials, the latest technology, and offering 5-star customer service with a focus on patient comfort, is what we strive to offer. My team and I do more than talk about this just because it sounds good; we deliver, whether a patient is seeing us for total mouth reconstruction or for a routine exam. It makes a huge difference.

LM: There are so many dentists to choose from and it seems as though everyone does cosmetic dentistry these days. What should people look for in a cosmetic dentist?

Dr. Young: Cosmetic dentistry is a great investment that can literally change your life, often in as few as two office visits. When choosing a dentist, there's no substitute for experience, a great reputation and in-depth, advanced education in cosmetic dentistry. Most people aren't aware that any dentist can claim to be a cosmetic dentist because there's no defined subspecialty within the dental field.

LM: Is that why you chose to take advanced courses at a world-renowned cosmetic dentistry school, The Las Vegas Institute for Advanced Dental Studies (LVI), and then become a fellow?

Dr. Young: Absolutely. LVI courses enabled me to study each aspect of cosmetic dentistry with a hands-on approach. At the same time, I was privileged to learn from some of the most renowned cosmetic dental practitioners in the country.

I am enthusiastic about continuing education, not only for myself but for my team. Everyone here takes continuing education courses to ensure that our patients are offered the best of each type of procedure.

LM: In addition to cosmetic and restorative dentistry, you offer general dentistry, don't you?

Dr. Young: Yes! My goal is not only about providing patients with the smiles they have always dreamed of, but I also want to ensure that their smiles remain beautiful over time as well. We are proud to offer virtually every type of dental service inside our office without having to refer patients to specialists. As a full-service practice we provide everything from preventive care to full smile makeovers, implant dentistry that includes placing implants, teeth whitening, and implant-supported prosthesis. I have two great dental hygienists, Lisa and Amanda, who are as dedicated to providing outstanding dental care as I am.

LM: Is there anything else that differentiates your practice and helps new patients become patients for life?

Dr. Young: We aren't a high volume practice. We run on time and focus on caring for one patient at a time. We get to know our patients and spend time with them to understand their concerns, answer questions, educate them, and explain treatment options in understandable terms. Patients leave feeling well-cared for, pampered, and relaxed. They know their smiles are in good hands.
